

relevance to its Member States. In pursuance of the mandate of the Thirty-third session the Secretary-General of the AALCC recently brought to the attention of the International Law Commission the views of the member Governments on the work of the International Law Commission at its previous session.

In the matters relating to Environment and Development the Secretariat while engaged in the analysis of the international instruments adopted by UNCED at Rio in June 1992 has now undertaken a study of the draft Convention on Combating Desertification and Mitigation of Drought as adopted by the Inter-governmental Negotiating Committee at its meeting held in Paris in June 1994. The proposed study is expected to assist and facilitate the representatives of the Member States in the adoption of the purposed Convention.

During the second term of the UN Decade of International Law the Secretariat of the AALCC studied, inter alia, the legal issues involved in Privatization of Public Sector Undertakings and liberalization of economic activities as a means to increasing economic efficiency, growth and sustainable development in the context of economic restructuring programmes. A Special Meeting on Developing Institutional and Legal Guidelines for Privatization and Post-privatization Regulatory Framework was convened during the Thirty-third session of the AALCC held in Tokyo last year. The World Bank rendered assistance in the convening of the Special Meeting and deputed two experts to facilitate the deliberations of the Special Meeting.

In the field of refugee law, the Secretariat's work on model legislation on refugees aimed at enlarging the definition of the term "refugee" to conform to fresh perceptions and existing realities was intensified. Early this year the AALCC at its session examined a report on 'Model Legislation on Refugees' and following the offer of the UNHCR seconded an officer to work at the Headquarters of the UNHCR. The Secretariat of the AALCC is drafting a detailed modular legislation on the rights and duties of refugees in the light of the codified principles of international law and the practice of States in the region. The modular legislation is proposed to be transmitted to all Member States for their consideration and comments prior to its consideration at the next annual session of the AALCC. The Secretariat of the AALCC is also working in close cooperation with the Organization of African Unity in this matter.

In connection with the objective of encouraging study, dissemination and wider appreciation of international law, the AALCC continues to print the reports of its annual sessions and the verbatim records thereof.

During the period under review the Secretariat of the AALCC has published the report of its Thirty-second session held in Kampala (Uganda) in 1993. The report of the thirty-third session held in Tokyo (Japan) in 1994 has also been published. A noteworthy feature of these volumes is that the research studies prepared by the AALCC Secretariat on some selected topics have been reproduced therein.

The AALCC has also published the outcome and proceedings of the Special Meeting on Developing Legal and Institutional Guidelines for Privatization and Post-Privatization Regulatory Framework, held in Tokyo in January 1994. The Report contains the text of the draft legal and institutional guidelines on privatization and post-privatization regulatory framework. The Secretariat has taken steps to ensure the widest possible dissemination of the aforementioned reports in the Afro-Asian region. The Secretariat's in-house training programme under which junior and medium-level officials of Member States are imparted in-house training would also lend support to this objective.

Finally, it may be stated that the Secretariat of the AALCC shall continue to liaise and cooperate with other competent regional organizations and specialized agencies of the United Nations in the fulfilment of its proposed activities and programme of work aimed at realizing the objectives of the United Nations Decade of International Law.

The item entitled "United Nations Decade of International Law" was included in the provisional agenda of the forty-ninth session of the General Assembly pursuant to paragraph 15 of Assembly resolution 48/30 of 9 December 1993.

In connection with the item, the Sixth Committee had before it the following documents:

- (a) Report of the Secretary-General (A/49/323 and Add. 1 and 2) on the implementation of the programme for the second term (1993-1994) of the Decade during the past year, containing also views on possible activities for the next term of the Decade and, as an annex, the revised guidelines for military manuals and instructions on the protection of the environment in times of armed conflict, prepared by the International Committee of the Red Cross;

Programme of the activities for the third term (1995-1996) of the United Nations Decades of International Law

I. Promotion of the Acceptance of and Respect for the Principles of International Law

The General Assembly, bearing in mind that maintenance of international peace and security is the underlying condition for the success of the implementation of the programme for the United Nations Decade of International Law, calls upon States to act in accordance with international law, and particularly the Charter of the United Nations, and encourages States and international organizations to promote the acceptance of and respect for the principles of international law.

States are invited to consider, if they have not yet done so, becoming parties to existing multilateral treaties, in particular those relevant to the progressive development of international law and its codification. International organizations under whose auspices such treaties are concluded are invited to indicate whether they publish periodic reports on the status of ratifications of and accessions to multilateral treaties, and if they do not, to indicate whether in their view such a process would be useful. Consideration should be given to the question of treaties which have not achieved wider participation or entered into force after a considerable lapse of time and the circumstances causing the situation.

States and international organizations are encouraged to provide assistance and technical advice to States, in particular to developing countries, to facilitate their participation in the process of multilateral treaty-making, including their adherence to and implementation of multilateral treaties, in accordance with their national legal systems.

States are encouraged to report to the Secretary-General on ways and means provided for in the multilateral treaties to which they are parties, regarding the implementation of such treaties. International organizations are similarly encouraged to report to the Secretary-General on ways and means provided for by the multilateral treaties concluded under their auspices, regarding the implementation of such treaties. The Secretary-General is requested to prepare a report on the basis of this information and to submit it to the General Assembly.

The General Assembly, recognizing the importance of the protection of cultural property in the event of armed conflict, takes note of the efforts under way to facilitate the implementation of existing international instruments in this field.

II. Promotion of Means and Methods for the Peaceful Settlement of Disputes between States, including Resort to and Full Respect for the International Court of Justice

States, the United Nations system of organizations and regional organizations, including the Asian-African Legal Consultative Committee, as well as the Institute of International Law, the Hispano-Luso-American Institute of International Law and other international institutions working in the field of international law, and national societies of international law, are invited to study the means and methods for the peaceful settlement of disputes between States, including resort to and full respect for the International Court of Justice, and to present suggestions for the promotion thereof to the Sixth Committee.

Taking into account the suggestions mentioned in paragraph 1 of the present section and with due regard to the recommendations contained in the report of the Secretary-General entitled "An Agenda for Peace",⁴ the Sixth Committee should consider, where appropriate, on the basis of a report of the Special Committee on the Charter of the United Nations and on the Strengthening of the Role of the Organization, or of the Working Group on the United Nations Decade of International Law, the following questions:

- (a) Strengthening the use of means and methods for the peaceful settlement of disputes, with particular attention to the role to be played by the United Nations, as well as methods for early identification and prevention of disputes and their containment;
- (b) Procedures for the peaceful settlement of disputes arising in specific areas of international law;
- (c) Ways and means of encouraging greater recognition of the role of the International Court of Justice and its wider use in the peaceful settlement of disputes;
- (d) Enhancement of cooperation of regional organizations with the United Nations system of organizations in respect of the peaceful settlement of disputes;
- (e) Wider use of the Permanent Court of Arbitration.

4. A/47/277-S/24111.

III. Encouragement of the Progressive Development of International Law and its Codification

International organizations, including the United Nations system and regional organizations, are invited to submit to the Secretary-General of the United Nations summary information regarding the programme and results of their work relevant to the progressive development of international law and its codification, including their suggestions for future work in their specialized field, with an indication of the appropriate forum to undertake such work. Similarly, the Secretary-General is requested to prepare a report on the relevant activities of the United Nations, including those of the International Law Commission. Such information should be presented in a report by the Secretary-General to the Sixth Committee.

On the basis of the information mentioned in paragraph 1 of the present section, States are invited to submit suggestions for consideration by the Sixth Committee and, as appropriate, recommendations. In particular, efforts should be made to identify areas of international law which might be ripe for progressive development of codification.

The Sixth Committee should study, taking into account General Assembly resolution 684 (VII) of 6 November 1952⁵, its coordinating role with respect, inter alia, to the drafting of provisions of a legal nature and the consistent use of legal terminology in international instruments adopted by the General Assembly. States are invited to present proposals in this regard to the Sixth Committee.

The Special Committee on the Charter of the United Nations and on the Strengthening of the Role of the Organizations should continue to study possible measures to strengthen the United Nations system for the maintenance of international peace and security. In that context, the Special Committee should bear in mind the debate within the United Nations, particularly within the General Assembly, on the report of the Secretary-General entitled "An Agenda for Peace".

IV. Encouragement of the Teaching, Study, Dissemination and Wider Appreciation of International Law

The Advisory Committee on the United Nations Programme of Assistance in the Teaching, Study, Dissemination and Wider Appreciation of International Law should, in the context of the Decade, continue to formulate, as appropriate and in a timely manner, relevant guidelines for the Programme's activities and report to the Sixth Committee on the activities carried out under the Programme in accordance with such guidelines. Special emphasis should be given to supporting academic and professional institutions already carrying out research and education in international law, as well as to encouraging the establishment of such institutions where they might not exist, particularly, in the developing countries. States and other public or private bodies are encouraged to contribute to the strengthening of the Programme.

5. See annex II to the rules of procedure of the General Assembly (A/520/Rev. 15).

States should encourage their educational institutions to introduce courses in international law for students studying law, political science, social sciences and other relevant disciplines; they should study the possibility of introducing topics of international law in the curricula of schools at the primary and secondary levels. Cooperation between institutions at the university-level among developing countries, on the one hand, and their cooperation with those of developed countries, on the other, should be encouraged.

States should consider convening of conferences of experts at the national and regional-levels in order to study the question of preparing model curricula and material for courses in international law, training of teachers in international law, preparation of textbooks on international law, and the use of modern technology to facilitate research in international law.

States, the United Nations and regional organizations should consider organizing seminars, symposia, training courses, lectures and meetings and undertaking studies on various aspects of international law.

States are encouraged to organize special training in international law for legal professionals, including judges, and personnel of ministries of foreign affairs and other relevant ministries as well as military personnel. The United Nations Institute for Training and Research, the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, The Hague Academy of International Law, the International Institute of Humanitarian Law, regional organizations and the International Committee of the Red Cross are invited to continue to cooperate in this respect with States.

In connection with the training of military personnel, States are encouraged to foster the teaching and dissemination of the principles governing the protection of the environment in times of armed conflict and should consider the possibility of making use of the guidelines for military manuals and instructions prepared by the International Committee of the Red Cross.

Cooperation among developing countries, as well as between developed and developing countries, in particular among those persons who are involved in the practice of international law, for exchanging experience and for mutual assistance in the field of international law, including assistance in providing textbooks and manuals of law, is encouraged.

In order to make better known the practice of international law, States, and international and regional organizations should endeavour to publish, if they have not done so, summaries, repertories or yearbooks of their practice.

States and international organizations should encourage the publication of important international legal instruments and studies by highly qualified publicists, bearing in mind the possibility of assistance from private sources.

The Secretary-General of the United Nations, in cooperation with the Registry of the International Court of Justice, is encouraged to update the publication Summaries of the Judgements, Advisory Opinions and Orders of the International Court of Justice (1949-1991), in all the official languages of the Organization and within the existing overall-level of appropriations.

Other international courts and tribunals, including the European Court of Human Rights and the Inter-American Court of Human Rights, are invited to disseminate more widely their judgments and advisory opinions, and to consider preparing thematic or analytical summaries thereof.

International organizations are requested to publish treaties concluded under their auspices, if they have not yet done so. Timely publication of the United Nations Treaty Series is encouraged and efforts directed towards adopting an electronic form of publication should be continued. Timely publication of the United Nations Juridical Year-book is also encouraged.

V. Procedures and Organizational Aspects

The Sixth Committee, working primarily through its Working Group on the United Nations Decade of International Law and with the assistance of the Secretariat, will be the coordinating body of the programme for the Decade. The question of the use of an intra-sessional, inter-sessional or existing body to carry out specific activities of the programme may be considered by the General Assembly.

The Sixth Committee is requested to continue to prepare the programme of activities for the Decade.

The Secretariat should proceed with the organization of the United Nations Congress on Public International Law to be held from 13 to 17 March 1995, within existing resources and assisted by voluntary contributions taking into account the guidance provided at the forty-eighth and forty-ninth sessions of the General Assembly, and keep the Member States informed of the status of the preparations.

All organizations and institutions referred to and invited to submit reports to the Secretary-General under sections I to IV above are requested to submit interim or final reports preferably at the fiftieth Session but not later than the fifty-first session of the General Assembly.

States are encouraged to establish, as necessary, national, regional and Sub-regional committees which may assist in the implementation of the programme for the Decade. Non-governmental organizations are encouraged to promote the purposes of the Decade within the fields of their activities, as appropriate.

It is recognized that, within the existing overall-level of appropriations, adequate financing for the implementation of the programme for the Decade is necessary and should be provided. Voluntary contributions from Governments, international organizations and other sources, including the private sector, would be useful and are strongly encouraged. To this end, the establishment of a trust fund to be administered by the Secretary-General might be considered by the General Assembly.

IV. Status and Treatment of Refugees

(i) Introduction

At the instance of the Government of the Arab Republic of Egypt, the subject 'Status and Treatment of Refugees' was first taken-up for study by the AALCC in 1963. It was observed that the AALCC's views would be invaluable in reflecting upon the refugees problem. Since then the Committee has regularly been taking-up this subject at its annual sessions and discussing the progress of work in this field.

The Thirty-first Session (1992) mandated the Secretariat to commence preparation of a draft model legislation on refugees. The topic was taken-up at the Thirty-second Session held in Kampala (1993). The following two studies prepared in accordance with the mandate were presented for consideration of the Thirty-third Session held in Tokyo in January 1994.

- A. Model legislation on the Status and Treatment of Refugees.
- B. Establishment of "Safety Zones" for the Displaced Persons in the Country of Origin.

A. MODEL LEGISLATION ON THE STATUS AND TREATMENT OF REFUGEES

The Asian-African Legal Consultative Committee at its Twenty-eighth Session held in Nairobi in 1989 decided to organize a Workshop on the refugee problems in Afro-Asian region with the cooperation of and in association with the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) to commemorate Twenty-five years of Working relationship between the two organizations. The Workshop entitled 'International Refugees and Humanitarian Law in the Asian-African Region' was held in New Delhi in October 1991, with an objective to promote general awareness and wider acceptability, among the Member States of
